MDA releases nitrogen management draft; seeks more input on rules

By Lori Sorenson

Gov. Mark Dayton last week updated a draft plan that would continue efforts to reduce nitrates in groundwater.

"Clean, safe, reliable water in our communities is everyone's concern, and everyone's responsibility," Dayton said on March 6 when he and Minnesota Agriculture Commissioner Dave Frederickson announced a proposed plan.

Protections would apply to vulnerable areas and areas with high nitrate levels in public drinking waters.

Proposed rule includes additional protections for drinking water based on public input from 1,500 farmers and landowners and over 820 written comments; Additional opportunities for public comment on the proposed measure will begin in May, with more public hearings to be scheduled this summer

The measure also would create a system of voluntary and mandatory mitigation practices in areas with high nitrate concentrations in the public water supplies.

Several townships in Rock County are considered "vulnerable areas" with high nitrate contamination.

Rock County leads efforts to reduce nitrates in water

Doug Bos of the Rock County Soil and Water Conservation District was on the original advisory team that wrote the MDA draft plan last year.

He said he felt that all interests are adequately represented with the 25-member team.

"They worked with all Minnesota producer groups, universities and soil and water folks like me," he said last summer when the draft plan was released. "It's a very good group of people who put this together over a two-year process."

Since then, 1,500 farmers, landowners and others participated in public comment on the proposal in 17 public meetings across the state and over 820 written comments.

"This proposal responds to what we heard," said Ag Commissioner Frederickson. "It balances the needs of farmers and modern agricultural production with the need of all Minnesotans to have safe drinking water."

For nearly 20 years Bos has worked locally to encourage farm-

RCO director joins rally for disability service funds

RCO and others face 7-percent funding cut amid struggle to hire and retain workers

By Lori Sorenson

Luverne's Elizabeth Schear traveled this week to the Minnesota Capitol where she rallied with others to support people with disabilities.

Schear is the director of Rock County Opportunities in Luverne where adults with disabilities find employment and other opportunities for independent living.

RCO depends on state funds for its operations, but that funding has historically been unstable, making it difficult to retain staff and maintain services, Schear said.

"Over the last few years we have found ourselves in a state of continuous change and uncertainty when it comes to funding," Schear said.

"It would sure be nice to have a more certain future for our staff and clients."

Tuesday, March 13, was Disability Day in St. Paul, and Schear joined roughly 1,000 others to oppose anticipated budget cuts to non-profits that serve people with disabilities.

RCO and other non-profit providers have been struggling for years under a complex disability service system, according to the Minnesota Organization for Habilitation and Rehabilitation (MOHR).

"All we are looking for is for some sense of long-term stability," said MOHR president Mike Burke.

"... stability in a system that will allow us to pay our staff competitive wages, which ultimately helps thousands of people with disabilities across the state who rely on our services for their quality of life."

He said a direct threat to service providers is a recently announced 7-percent funding cut for services.

Complex formulas that determine rates paid to disability service providers are tied to an inflationary

Cloverbuds learn 'All About Horses'

By Mavis Fodness

Twenty-five children and adults received a Saturday morning lesson and up-close look at horses as part of the Rock County 4-H Animal Adventures program.

"All About Horses" is one of a series of Cloverbud programs (kindergarten through second grade) that focus on animals.

The first of the "All About" programs involved dogs, dairy, sheep and rabbits last fall.

"All About Beef" is scheduled for April 7.

Participants spent time in small groups completing worksheets before gathering for group presentations.

The hourlong event concluded with participants meeting the animals and learning more about the county's horse project.

On Saturday participants traveled to the Harlan and Sue Stueven farm east of Hills. Daughters and former 4-H'ers Natalie Fick and Meagan Stueven led the sessions.

"With horses they are a big animal," Fick cautioned. "But if you run around and make a lot of noise you could scare them. I don't want you to get hurt."

Participants met horses named Bill, Jake and Indy.

All the programs are free.

For more information contact the Rock County 4-H Program at 507-283-1302.

County road and bridge plan approved for 2018

By Mavis Fodness

Rock County Commissioners approved a plan to spend almost $5 million on county road and bridge improvements this year, according to discussion at their March 6 meeting.

Details of the annual plan will be presented to city and township officials at an April 3 road and bridge meeting.

Highway Engineer Mark Sehr outlined his department's five-year work plan that includes almost 70 miles of paved roads and six bridges.

Improvement costs are estimated at over $4.7 million, budgeted from federal, state and local aid.

"This is the work we would like to do if we can," Sehr said. "Some will fall back because we won't get funding."

factor and funding agreements with the federal government, he said.

If left unaddressed, it could mean damaging cuts are permanent. "It is extremely difficult to create budgets and forecast future revenue when we rely completely on funding that is controlled by the State," Schear said.

"And those in charge frequently, and without much warning, cut that funding."

She said the administrative paperwork ends up harming the very people her organization intends to help.

"We are then forced to spend time and energy trying to prevent the cuts or look for ways to restructure to accommodate cuts when our prevention efforts are unsuccessful," Schear said.

"All of this time and energy should be spent providing services that the people we serve need."

Rep. Joe Schomacker, Luverne, told the Star Herald Tuesday that he is chief author of a bill that he hopes will address some funding issues.

He said recent federal cuts have been due to confusing language between state health officials and federal offices about inflationary adjustments and base rate adjustments.

His new bill, which passed the House Committee Tuesday morning, would refer to all rate adjustments as "workforce disparity adjustments" in the formal language.

"We're hoping this will have some affect on federal funding going forward," Schomacker said.

Tuesday's rally also included the Association of Residential Resources of Minnesota (ARRM) and the Best Life Alliance, a statewide coalition of people with disabilities, their families and providers of home and community-based services.

Legislators, disability staff members and others impacted by legislative decisions offered testimony at the rally, as did individuals who receive services.

Burke said the rally put faces and names before state leaders to help them understand that they are not simply talking about policies and money, but people's lives.

"It's important for senators and representatives to hear from individuals with disabilities, their families and the people who work closely with them," said Burke.

He said the issues often come down to the "person-centered" concept of allowing people with disabilities and their families to make choices.

"If you give someone three more choices, awesome, but if you give three more choices and eliminate two things, that's not a choice," Burke said.

Livestock feedlot operations continue to expand in Rock County

By Mavis Fodness

Only three months into the 2018 permit year, livestock production expansion in Rock County is nearly halfway to matching the number of permits issued during all of last year.

In his 2017 feedlot summary to the Rock County Board of Commissioners on March 6, feedlot officer Doug Bos said 18 feedlots were permitted in 2017.

Seven feedlot expansions are already permitted in 2018.

"This year looks like another banner year," he said.

The Rock County Land Management Office has had inquiries from a dozen producers interested in expanding livestock production within the county.

Applying for a permit is dependent on finding a location and pending financial arrangements, Bos said.

In 2017 LMO issued permits for eight new hog facilities

(five on new sites), nine cattle feedlot expansions (three new cattle barns) and one dairy expansion.

Already in 2018, proposed construction plans call for three new hog facilities, three cattle expansions (one barn) and one dairy expansion.

The Minnesota Pollution Control Agency contracts annually with individual counties to assist with the state's feedlot program.

In 2017, LMO received $103,639 from MPCA to administer the program locally.

In addition to permits, LMO also inspects local feedlots for MPCA, completing at least 7 percent of the 600 feedlots in Rock County.

In 2017 LMO officials inspected 43 sites and 21 land application sites. LMO also assists landowners with environmental improvements.

One environmental improvement was completed in Rock County last year.

Federal funds denied to repair fire-damaged bridge by Beaver Creek

By Mavis Fodness

Plans to replace the fire-damaged County Road 52 bridge southwest of Beaver Creek is on hold, according to Rock County Highway Engineer Mark Sehr.

He told Rock County Board members at their March 6 meeting that the request for federal funds to replace the timber-pile bridge destroyed in a July 2017 fire was denied.

"We were No. 2 for our district," Sehr said.

"There is a bridge in Brown County over the Minnesota River that is currently closed and has much higher traffic counts and scored a lot better."

Roughly 50 vehicles per day use the bridge over the Burlington Northern Sante Fe Railroad in Martin Township.

The denied federal request, however, placed the Rock County bridge on the list for possible state funds later this spring.

It will cost an estimated $1 million to replace the destroyed bridge.

It was determined that an extinguished July 4 campfire had reignited and caused the fire that burned the bridge.

Elliot John Krueger, Sioux Falls, was charged in October with "negligent fires — with a property value of $2,500 or more."

a loosely tied glittery Scunci that let the ponytail flop from one side of her head to other, and sometimes over her forehead.

I liked her style. Mostly because she was everything I never was.

My closet is full of conservative, understated clothing, mostly in shades of gray, brown and black. And I own nothing that glitters.

Despite all the distractions on this 7-year-old dynamo, I remembered noticing only her smile.

"I like your shoes," I said when we sat on the floor with our feet stretched out in front of us. "I like yours," she said about my plain black boots with a lonely buckle.

"This will be fun," I said. "I don't have girls in my house, and all my Bookin' Buddies have been boys."

She smiled and inched a little closer, as if to console me.

I learned that her scarf actually belonged to her mother, and she learned that her daddy and my husband work together for the State Patrol.

I looked forward to her smile at our Wednesday meetings, to enjoy what she was wearing.

So, the recent chance meeting with my second-grade friend inspired the following day's attire.

The office door reflection made me pause, but then I thought of sweet Autumn and smiled.

My mother often told my sisters and me, "Smile and no one will notice what you're wearing."

I smiled a lot that day.

'Keeping the light on the people's business'

Government transparency is primary focus of annual Sunshine Week

GUEST OPINION

By Jim Zachary, director of Transparency Project of Georgia

This week is Sunshine Week, and its timing is only coincidental with the extra hour of daylight that came with Sunday's time change.

Sunshine Week started in 2002 as an annual effort to foster a discussion about the need for open government, especially the public's access to government records and transparency by our government officials.

Open government is not a political platform.

It is a basic American right.

The political landscape is more polarized than ever and there seems to be little common ground for conservatives and progressives.

Transparency — keeping the light on the people's business — ought to be something everyone can agree on.

Instead, conservatives want to reveal the secrets of liberals and liberals want to expose the actions of conservatives.

Openness in government is not a liberal, conservative, Republican, Democrat, independent, Libertarian or freedom caucus issue.

It often appears that whatever party is in the minority becomes the champion of transparency right up until the time it is in the majority.

Politicians stomp on transparency and are all about open access until they have something they want to keep secret.

The need for transparency in local, state and federal government transcends parties and political ideologies.

Checks and balances provide few checks and little balance when officials broker deals behind closed doors and conceal documents that contain important information that the public has the right, and often the need, to know.

Local government has the biggest impact in the lives of people on a day-to-day basis.

Whether it is in the form of property taxes, sales taxes, business taxes, state-shared dollars or federal grants, loans and funding, local government is 100 percent taxpayer-funded.

The public has the right to know how its money is being spent.

The decisions being made, the dollars being doled out and the records being kept by city hall, the county commission, the board of education or the utility district all belong to liberals, conservatives, Republicans, Democrats, independents, Libertarians and even politically disinterested individuals.

All stakeholders have a stake in open meetings and public records and should care about transparency issues.

The lack of and need for true government transparency should be about the most bipartisan cause that exists.

Any elected official who truly cares about public service in a real and meaningful way and fully understands what a representative form of government is all about should not only champion openness in government but should be the most effective watchdog, looking out for the public trust.

Sadly, those kinds of elected officials are hard to find.

The press tries to keep an eye on government and expose clandestine actions and in response journalists are often ridiculed, belittled and even threatened for just doing their jobs as they work to keep government honest by making use of access laws.

But the public needs to understand that access to government documents and actions is not just a media right.

It is your right.

Weekend o' activities surround St. Pat's Day

Talk about a busy weekend and it starts tonight (Thursday). The Green Earth Players raise the curtain on "KOLD Radio-Whitefish Bay" for the first of two weekends of performances at the historic Palace Theatre. Tickets are still available at the Palace ticket office.

If you're still trying to figure out what LIFT is all about, it's time to wake up and notice many of the good things that are happening around town and realize that LIFT probably had a hand in them.

Groundwater Protection Effort Part 1
Fertilizer Application During the Fall Season	Where the Proposal Would Apply: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Vulnerable Areas - The proposed groundwater protection measure would restrict the application of fertilizer in areas with more porous soils (coarse textured soil, karst, shallow bedrock), which have the capacity to leach greater volumes of water during the fall season. These new procedures for fertilizer application would reduce the movement of nitrates through the soil into groundwater supplies. Public Water Supply Areas - The proposed groundwater protection measure also would restrict the application of fertilizer during the fall in Drinking Water Supply Management Areas where the nitrate concentration exceeds 5.4 mg/L. Exceptions to the Fertilizer Application Requirements: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Crops That Require Fall Nitrogen - An exemption would exist for crops such as winter grains, grass seed, and cover crops that require fall nitrogen. Areas with Low Leaching Potential - An exemption would exist for areas with low leaching potential based on precipitation and evapotranspiration rates and a short spring planting season. Areas with No Row Crops - An exemption would exist for counties where less than three percent of land is used for row crops (northeast Minnesota and Ramsey County).
Groundwater Protection Effort Part 2
Mitigation Requirements for Elevated Nitrate Levels in Drinking Water	Voluntary Action: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Level 1 and 2 - In areas where the public water supply has nitrate concentrations in excess of 5.4 mg/L. Drinking Water Supply Management Areas would be encouraged to voluntarily implement best management practices to reduce nitrate levels. Under Level 2, the decision to implement best management practices would remain voluntary. Mandatory Action: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Level 3 - If after three years under Level 2 nitrate concentrations continue to increase, then the Drinking Water Supply Management Area would be given a Level 3 designation. The Commissioner of Agriculture - in consultation with a local advisory team - would then direct landowners to implement best management practices, testing, and educational programs. Level 4 - If after three years under Level 3 nitrate concentrations continue to increase or remain high, the Commissioner of Agriculture - in consultation with local advisory teams - could direct landowners to implement additional practices beyond best management practices to address high nitrate levels. Exceptions: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Progress Under Way - In areas where progress is being made, the Commissioner of Agriculture could grant a one-time exemption before moving the area to the next level of regulation.
Groundwater Protection Effort Part 3
Designation of High Priority Areas	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Criterion for High Priority Areas - The Commissioner of Agriculture could designate Level 2 areas to be "high priority" and focus resources in those communities. The Commissioner would make the determination based on risk to people and communities and the degree of contamination. The Department of Agriculture also would approve a detailed plan for addressing high nitrate levels in these areas.

ing practices that reduce nitrates in drinking water.

Cover crops, buffers near waterways, targeted nitrogen application and other practices are already in place.

He said farmers are receptive to changes because fertilizer is expensive and it's in their interest to keep it from leaching into groundwater.

But data released early in 2017 show elevated nitrate contamination in more than half the wells tested in some of Rock County's most vulnerable areas.

So, Bos said, attention now targets fertilizer application on the most vulnerable soils, especially for corn.

Research shows that only half of fertilizer applied to cornfields is absorbed and utilized; the rest is susceptible to water runoff and leaching into aquifers.

Further compounding nitrogen loss is the fact that climate change is delivering rain in "extreme weather events," according to Bos, who notes that in the past 20 years, 30 percent of local rain has come in hard downpours.

"We have to find a way to spoon-feed it (to crops) to prevent nitrogen from getting into our water," Bos said last year, speaking especially of areas with vulnerable soil.

"In these areas, because of their soil porosity, it's difficult to raise a nitrogen-needing crop and keep the nitrogen out of the water," Bos said.

He added that this sensitive land comprises a small minority of areas most affected by the nitrogen rule on fall application.

"Keeping that nitrogen in the soil is a matter of profitability for farmers," he said. "It's all part of a push for best management practices for nitrogen over a series of years."

Bos was in St. Paul earlier this week talking to legislators about soil and water conservation issues, including buffers and the nitrogen rule.

Despite solid support from farmers for the nitrogen rule, he said there is pushback from legislators who have been hearing from ag lobby groups opposed to the measure.

"Keeping that nitrogen in the soil is a matter of profitability for farmers. It's all part of a push for best management practices for nitrogen over a series of years."

— Doug Bos, Rock County SWCD

"There is a real danger of serious economic consequences for farmers, landowners, and all Minnesotans if the rule should be improperly applied."

— Sen. Bill Weber, Luverne

Sen. Bill Weber, Luverne, for example, is critical of the plan.

"There is a real danger of serious economic consequences for farmers, landowners, and all Minnesotans if the rule should be improperly applied," Weber said in his March 9 legislative update.

"I believe we need to study the proposed rule carefully before considering a significant change to the fertilizer situation. We also need to see the research upon which the rule is based."

Bos said when he spoke individually with legislators they supported the nitrogen rule once they learned it would be adapted slowly, starting with the most vulnerable areas.

"It was over half farmers on the committee that worked on this, and they really felt this was the best way to slowly address the nitrogen issue," he said. "It would be 10 years before we get to the enforcement stage."

Still, House Agriculture Committee Republicans Rod Hamilton, Mountain Lake, and Paul Anderson, Starbuck, publicly opposed the measure in a joint statement March 6.

"Today's press conference was nothing more than a reactionary rebranding of a vastly unpopular rule released in 2017, which received a great deal of pushback from the ag community," they said.

"Farmers are already using less nitrogen than they have in the past, and this type of rulemaking only results in more unnecessary regulations."

They said the measure should be farmer-driven, and they "strongly encourage the governor to abandon his efforts to enforce this unpopular proposition via administrative rule."

Rule may be adopted late in 2018 to affect some 2019 practices

As rulemaking proceeds, the MDA will continue engaging farmers, landowners, and other key stakeholders in the process to gather more input.

The timeline for the rulemaking process is proposed as follows:

Mid-to-late-May 2018 - The MDA will publish the draft groundwater protection rule and Statement of Need and Reasonableness for a 30-day public comment period.

Summer 2018 - The MDA will host public hearings on the draft groundwater protection rule.

Fall 2018 - The Office of Administrative Hearings will review the comments and give the MDA 180 days to make revisions to the groundwater protection rule based on Administrative Law Judge and public hearings.

December 2018 - The MDA will submit the final groundwater protection rule to Office of Administrative Hearings, the Office of the Revisor of Statutes, and to the governor.

"I am grateful to the many farmers, landowners, and others who worked with the Department of Agriculture to develop this proposal, which would greatly improve the quality of drinking water for Minnesotans," said Gov. Dayton.

"I urge all Minnesotans who wish to further improve or refine this proposal to engage in the public comment period beginning this spring, and attend the additional public hearings that will be scheduled this summer."

•Burglars escaped with a 1,000 pound safe containing an estimated $2,000 in cash and checks Monday night or early Tuesday from Les' Foodland here.

Entry was made through a 10 in. x 18 in. hole in the clay tile wall on the south side of the store. Exit was made through a rear door on the north side of the building which was slammed shut and locked by meticulous thieves who left nothing in disarray either inside or outside the store. The theft was discovered by Les Murphy, owner, when he opened the store Tuesday morning about 7:30 a.m.

The safe about 20 in. deep 21 in. wide, and 32 in. high, was in a small paneled office enclosure just inside the front door at the store. A portable desk top above the safe had been removed, and neatly set beside a shelf of groceries. The safe was too large to get it through the doorway into the enclosure, so the burglars evidentially used tools found in the rear of the store, normally used for opening wood fruit crates, to take out several screws which held the base of the paneled wall to the floor. With the screws removed, they were able to move the wall far enough to move the safe into the aisle.

The members of the local post had a "birthday party" in conjunction with their regular monthly meeting, and enjoyed a baked bean feed prepared by Harm Smook, and a birthday cake, decorated with an American flag in colors, furnished with the Legion by the local auxiliary to commemorate the occasion.

Although the local organization was not completed until October 1919, the members of the post here decided to celebrate at this meeting as March has been designated as American Legion month.

•Thirty-three head of cattle and one horse, owned by Jens Thorson, were killed by a single bolt of lightning Wednesday afternoon on section 15, Magnolia township.

The cattle were all mature cows, with the exception of three 3-year-old steers, and, aside from six Durhams, were all Herefords. Twenty-one of the cows have commenced milking within the next month. The horse was a two-year-old valued at $175.

The cattle and horse were in a large shed where they had gone to escape the rain. In this shed at the time were one hundred twenty cattle and sixteen horses. All of these cattle were practically mature ones, as the calves and younger critters were quartered in another building.

Mr. Thorson was away from his home at the time, but two hired men were near at hand, and they hurried to the shed. Not one of the thirty-four head then showed any sign of life, aside from a slight twitching in a few instances.

The live stock was insured in the Rose Dell Mutual Fire Insurance company, but Mr. Thorson carried only $800 on cattle, although $1,500 on horses. He estimated his loss on the cattle at $2,500.

County five-year road and bridge plan/from 1A slated for full-depth reclamation, with another almost two miles scheduled for bituminous paving.

Included in the paving work is the newly designated County Road 38 in Luverne's Industrial Park.

An intersection warning system at the corner of county roads 4 and 17 (commonly known as Manley Corner) is slated for possible installation later this year.

As vehicles approach the intersection, lights will begin flashing when another vehicle is also present at the intersection.

"There have been a lot of near-misses," Sehr said. "There have not been a lot of injury accidents."

Cost estimate for the warning system is $100,000. State aid funds are earmarked to cover the expense.

Sixty-five miles of county

City, township officials' meeting at 1:30 p.m. April 3 in the library outlines five years of projects to city, township officials roads are scheduled for seal-coating this year.

Six bridges are also on the docket for replacement, bringing the county's structurally deficient bridges count down to under 25.

About 150 bridges were on the county's deficient list when Sehr became engineer 32 years ago.

He said the number of deficient bridges varies from county to county.

"Some counties are doing the same (number) as us and do five to 10 every year if they can," Sehr said. "We don't have a lot left."

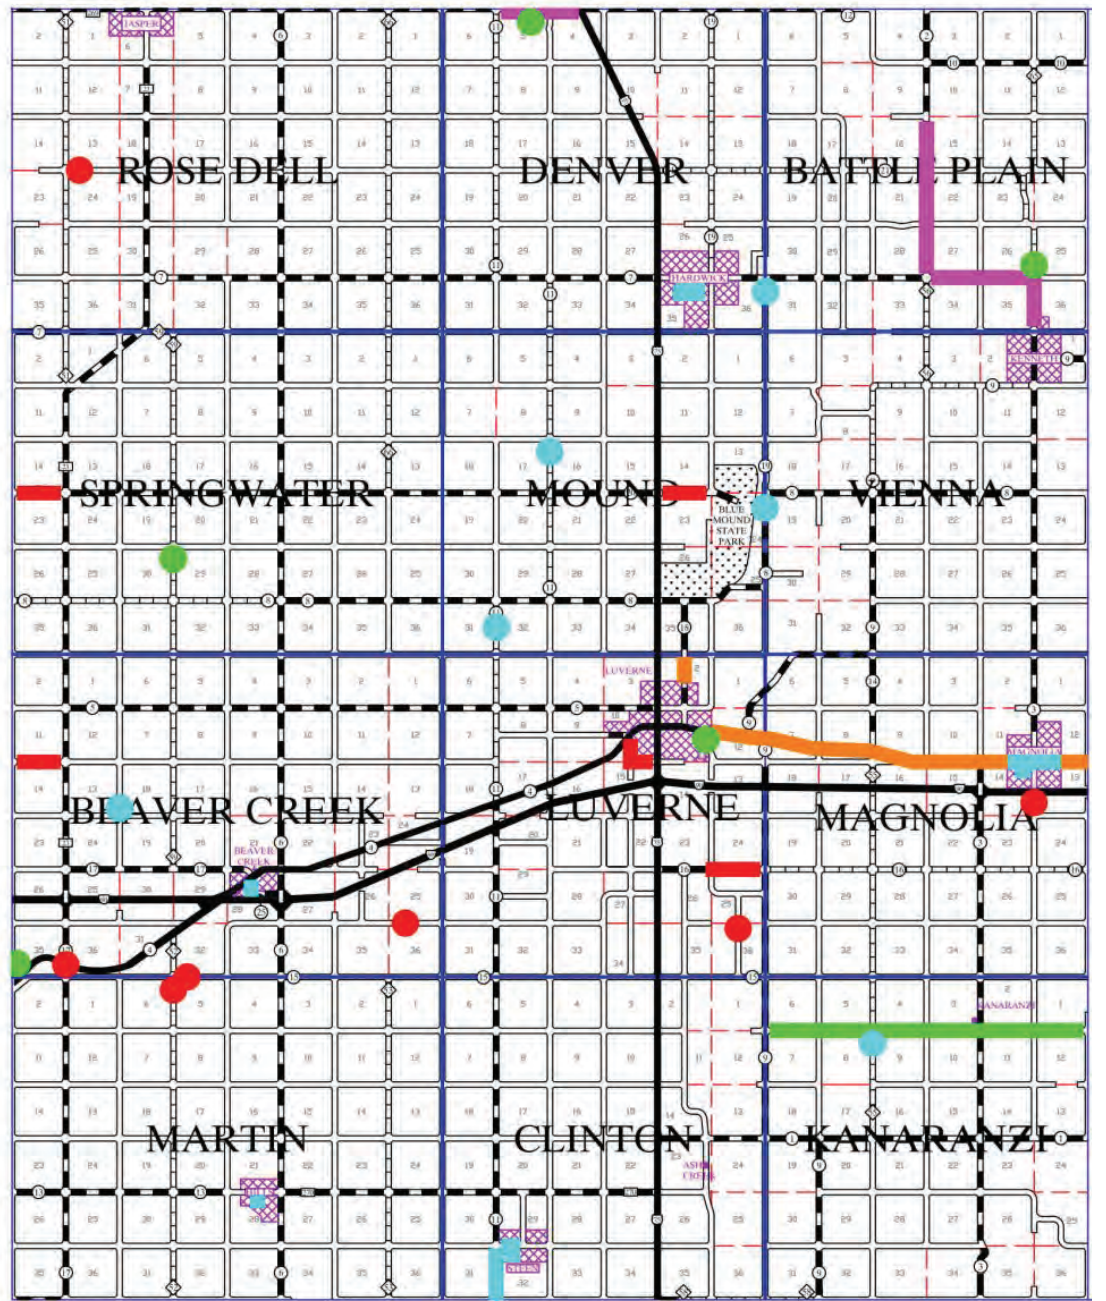

Five bridge replacements are scheduled for 2019 and six for 2020.

Year 2020 is still on schedule for improvements in five of Rock County's small cities.

"I haven't done much work in the small cities since I have come (on as engineer in 1986)," Sehr said.

Mill and overlay work is scheduled for county roads in Hardwick, Hills, Beaver Creek, Magnolia and Steen. In addition, sidewalk repairs are scheduled in Hardwick and curb/gutter for portions of roadway in Magnolia.

The April 3 road and bridge meeting begins at 1:30 p.m. at the Rock County Library.

*"It's been a dream of mine and every 6-year-old who wants to be a prima ballerina."

Prima ballerina career would be 'a dream come true' for Luverne student Luverne High School freshman Annaliese Braucht is experiencing a "just right" fit in pursuit of her career as ballerina.

She describes herself as "not too short, not too tall, idealistic proportions with a longer neck and longer arms, long-lengthy muscles and natural balance."

This summer the 14-year-old will study the form of classical dance with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet in Manitoba, Canada.

Depending on how well Braucht performs at the four-week summer camp, she could be invited to attend the ballet's year-round school.

"This is the most prestigious school in Canada where only a small number of students are accepted," said Braucht, daughter of Jason and Sonja Braucht of rural Beaver Creek.

She is cautious, however, about the possibility of studying ballet full time.

"It is very common for dancers to make it this far but the door closes for a number of reasons," she said.

Timing, injury, or a poor performance at an audition can send a dancer back home.

"Annaliese has got a lot of things on her side," said her dance instructor Jackie Peterson-Kriens, Sioux Falls. "Just to get into a company is a huge honor."

Grace, flexibility, a good memory for dance steps, strength and beautiful lines are among Kriens' description of Braucht, whom she has seen on a weekly basis for the past several years.

Braucht spends four days a week in one or more classes offered at Kriens' Dance Gallery of South Dakota in Sioux Falls.

To be successful in ballet Kriens likens a dancer's dedication to that of an Olympic athlete's.

"You can't just stop working out or skip classes," she said. "You have to maintain ... a consistent schedule to gain more muscle."

Work with a physical therapist once a week helps with Braucht's muscle strains and soreness and development of exercises to prevent further injuries.

Blisters and bruised toenails are also common for dancers who can wear out a pair of ballet shoes in a matter of days.

For Braucht, this summer's chance to wear out a few pointe shoes began at a very young age.

"I knew she wanted to be a dancer before she was born," said her mother, Sonja.

She said she had to leave a Rock Moninoff concert while pregnant because the constant movements of the not-yet-born Annaliese made her sick.

When she was 2 years old, her parents enrolled her in a nearby dance program while living in Madison, Wisconsin.

As a toddler, Annaliese was exposed to tap, jazz, hip hop, ballet and, three years ago, the Cecchetti Method of ballet instruction.

"It opened my eyes to a different style focused around ballet," Annaliese said.

Named after Enrico Cecchetti, the method focuses on a dancer's anatomy through a series of exercises meant to enhance technical development.

"The Cecchetti style of teaching gives dancers perfect technique and saves the dancer's body from injuries," she said.

Braucht began the Cecchetti method by age 10 and quickly mastered the methodology and dance movement spoken in French.

She has completed four national exams on the method, passing all four, two with highly recommended marks.

Those high marks were evident in January when Braucht traveled to four auditions in Minneapolis and Indianapolis. Judges were selecting a handful of participants for the Boston and/or Royal Winnipeg ballet companies.

The auditions were the first times Braucht tried for a spot with out-of-state ballet companies.

"I can be so nervous waiting for the auditions to begin but as soon as I touch the bar, I am calm," she said.

A lack of confidence can be a detriment to a dancer's performance as viewed by the judges.

Annaliese Braucht holds a pose called relieve in fifth position.

"If you hold back, they will notice," Braucht said.

From the four auditions, Braucht received two offers. She chose Royal Winnipeg.

Attending a summer camp is not new for Braucht, who spent four-weeks in Holland, Michigan, last year.

"Without that experience I wouldn't have known how serious I am," she said.

While she is at the July camp, ballet company officials will contact her parents if she is chosen to further her ballet skills at the year-round school in Canada.

"It's been a dream of mine and every 6-year-old who wants to be a prima ballerina," Braucht said.

Two Cards make hockey team

By John Rittenhouse

Two members of the Luverne High School girls' hockey squad cracked the roster of the 2017-18 All-Big South Conference Girls' Hockey Team.

A total of 13 all-conference selections and seven honorable mention awards were doled out by the league's coaches last week. Luverne, which placed third in the league with an 8-5-1 record, drew a pair of all-conference selections.

Senior goalie Emilie Bartels and eighth-grade forward Reghan Bork represent the Cardinals on the all-league roster.

Marshall, which placed second to New Ulm in the conference standings with a 10-4 mark, led all teams by having three players listed on the all-league roster.

Seniors Rachel VanKeulen and Courtney Mauch and junior Sydney Mauch made the team for Marshall, which captured the Section 3A title in late February.

New Ulm, which captured the conference championship with a 14-0 record and advanced to the state tournament as well, placed two athletes on the all-conference roster.

Seniors Ali Beltz and Dani Weiss represent the Eagles on the roster.

Waseca and Windom matched LHS and Marshall by drawing two all-conference selections.

Senior Riley Brown and sophomore Jayde Pederson made the team for Waseca.

Seniors Molly Boyum and Emily Steen represent Windom. Minnesota River senior Emma Doherty-Bohn and Worthington senior Bailey Kruse round out the all-conference squad.

Drawing honorable mention from the league's coaches are Minnesota River senior Kendall Wenner and junior Ashley Pudwell, New Ulm juniors Madeline Gag and Ashlyn Wittscheck, Windom junior Anna Volk, Worthington freshman Ashton Fogelman and Marshall freshman Emma Klenken.

Baskets for Boltjes rakes in more than $2,000 Monday

By John Rittenhouse

Some Luverne High School students and faculty members played basketball for a noble cause Monday night.

March Madness basketball events have become an annual event at LHS in recent years, but the 2018 version of the event took on more meaning for the participants.

According to Mark Lundgren, who supervises the LHS student councils, said there will be a new beneficiary from Monday's activity.

The Rock County Food Shelf was beneficiary from the first two March Madness events, but this year's effort will be donated to a member of the school staff.

All proceeds from Buckets for Boltjes will be going to Sharon Boltjes, a library aide who also directed the fall and spring plays at LHS.

Boltjes currently is battling cancer, and when Lundgren received administrative approval to list Boltjes as the benefactor, the members of the student councils embraced the change.

The focal point of Monday's event surrounded two basketball games.

Game 1 featured LHS juniors squaring off against the seniors, and Game 2 consisted of members of the boys' and girls' basketball programs taking on a team consisting of faculty members.

The opening game went to the juniors, who rolled to a 36-15 victory over the seniors.

The finale went to the faculty, which fell behind early before rallying to defeat the varsity players by a 35-27 tally.

Ultimately, it was Sharon Boltjes who was the big winner for the night as the event raised more than $2,000 for her battle.

H-BC's scoring lists could change dramatically during 2018-19 season

The winter sports season is complete for the four schools from the Star Herald coverage area, but Hills-Beaver Creek basketball fans definitely have something to look forward to during the 2018-19 campaign.

Not only should H-BC field competitive girls' and boys' teams next winter, I'm expecting the landscape to change in terms of the history of each H-BC program.

I may do a little too much spouting off when putting together weekly columns, but I'm happy to say I was onto something in my column that ran in the March 12, 2015, edition of the Star Herald.

Days after watching an eighth-grader named Sidney Fick score a team-high 14 points during a loss to Wabasso in the semifinal round of the South Section 3A that year, I listed her as being an athlete that area sports fans should keep an eye on in the coming years.

The current H-BC junior has not disappointed me in that respect.

Fick, who led a Patriot squad that won 21 games this season, became the fifth H-BC girl to surpass the 1,000-point mark of her career early in the season.

She went on to lead the Patriots in scoring with 516 points, which vaulted Fick into second place on the school's all-time scoring list for female players.

Barring any unforeseen circumstances, Fick not only should become the school's leading scorer in the history of the girls' basketball program next winter, I like her chances of becoming H-BC's all-time leading scorer overall.

Her 156-point winter season leaves Fick with 1,383 career points.

She is 173 points shy of matching Erin (Boeve) Metzger's total of 1,556 points, which is the current scoring standard for H-BC girls.

Fick could surpass

Metzger on the list in December or early January next season, and that could just be the beginning of her assault on H-BC's record book.

Halden Van Wyhe is H-BC's all-time leading scorer with 1,758 points.

Fick needs to net 375 more points to match Van Wyhe on the list, and that could well happen if she comes close to matching her 516-point 2017-18 season.

After a tremendous junior season, Preston Wilhelmi finds himself in a position to climb the ladder on H-BC's all-time scoring list as well next winter.

Wilhelmi, a high-scoring guard who drained 45 consecutive three throws during one stretch of the recently completed season, outscored Fick by a 583-516 margin this year.

Wilhelmi sank one free throw in the final minute of a loss to W-WG in the Section 3A quarterfinals on March 3, leaving him with 1,000 career points.

Wilhelmi is one of 13 H-BC boys to reach the 1,000-point mark for his career, and is one productive season away from going down in history as H-BC's fourth-leading scorer in boys' program history.

It might be a lot to ask of Wilhelmi to surpass Van Wyhe, Steve Esselink (1,650 points) and Kale Wiertzema (1,638), some of the top point-producers in the history of the H-BC's boys' basketball program.

Then again, based on his 583-point output this past season, I wouldn't rule anything out.

Just matching his scoring total of last season would slip Wilhelmi past Chad Koel (1,414 points) as the fourth-leading scorer in the history of the boys' program.

With a productive regular season and an extended playoff run next winter, Wilhelmi might have a chance to move as high as second place on the boys' all-time scoring list.

BUILT ON A ROCK

By Ron Nichols, pastor, Grace Lutheran Church, Luverne

I think one could argue that this short sentence is probably one of most important verses in the whole Bible. This is the Gospel: "repent" and "believe."

A question I've always had is, "How did Jesus say these words?"

One of the problems we encounter when reading the Bible is that we are often unable to tell exactly how things are said. When we speak with someone face to face, we have a much better idea about how that person wants us to understand what is being said. When we speak face-to-face, we notice things like tone of voice, body gestures, volume, facial expressions and more. And there is less chance of being misunderstood. But just reading the Bible, we have a harder time.

So when you read Jesus' message, "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God has come near; repent, and believe in the good news," how do you imagine Jesus is saying this? Is there excitement in his voice, or is he calm? What do you think?

I think we could take these words of Jesus one of three ways: either they are harsh, demanding and emotional; or informational, kind of like "take it or leave it"; or like an appeal to our better judgment, an urgent appeal to our consciences.

Do you suppose Jesus speaks harshly, direct, and with authority, like a strict parent scolding a disobedient child? Hellfire and brimstone, as we used to call it.

Well, I don't imagine him red-faced, pointing a finger, and yelling at people. What do you think?

Perhaps Jesus said these words more like sharing helpful information. Perhaps Jesus is recommending to those who would like to be more religious something important without offending anyone else. Does Jesus say these things in an effort just to be helpful? Do you suppose Jesus was aiming his comments at people who just wanted to feel better about themselves but didn't necessarily want to change their lives?

No, I can't imagine Jesus as one who tiptoes lightly around people. What he says is vitally important, not to just some, but to all. I can't imagine Jesus as one who just provides people with viable options for a better life.

Neither of the first two suggestions is very satisfying, is it? The pointing, shouting, condemning Jesus just doesn't fit well. And the mousy, don't hurt anyone's feelings Jesus just doesn't fit either. No, I think Jesus speaks his words to people like an urgent appeal. I think Jesus speaks these words the same as someone might say, "The house is on fire, get out!" I imagine honest emotion in his voice as he came to Galilee. "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God has come near; repent, and believe in the good news."

May this Lenten Season be a true blessing to you and yours.

Notice of Delinquent Taxes

State of Minnesota
County of Rock

District Court
Fifth Judicial District

TO: ALL PERSONS WITH A LEGAL INTEREST IN THE PARCELS OF REAL PROPERTY DESCRIBED IN THE FOLLOWING DELINQUENT TAX LIST
A list of real property in Rock County on which delinquent property taxes and penalties are due has been filed with the District Court Administrator of Rock County. This list is published to inform all persons that the listed property is subject to forfeiture because of delinquent taxes.

The property owner, taxpayer, or other interested person must either pay the tax and penalty, plus interest and costs, or file a written objection with the district court administrator. The objection must be filed by April 18, 2018, stating the reason why the tax or penalty is not due on the property. If no objection is filed, a court judgement will be entered against the property for the unpaid tax, penalty, interest and costs.

For property under court judgment, the period of redemption begins on May 14, 2018. The period of redemption means the time within which taxes must be paid to avoid losing the property through forfeiture. The period of redemption is three years, with a handful of exceptions. The redemption period is one year for most properties located in a targeted neighborhood, as defined in the Minnesota laws, and for municipal solid waste disposal facilities. The redemption period is five weeks for certain abandoned or vacant properties.

You may also enter into a confession of judgment as an alternative method to paying off the delinquent tax amount and avoiding forfeiture. This allows you to pay the delinquent balance in equal annual installments with a down payment due at the time you confess judgment. The length of the installment plan varies: 5 years for commercial-industrial/public utility property; 10 years for all other properties.

If you have homesteaded property, you may be eligible for a Senior Citizen's Property Tax Deferral, which enables seniors to pay just 3% of their total household income and allow remaining amounts to become a lien on the property that may be deferred for later payment (perhaps upon eventual sale of the property).

It should also be noted by property homesteaders that you are ineligible to receive the Property Tax refund while you owe delinquent property tax.

To determine how much interest and costs must be added to pay the tax in full, contact the Rock County Auditor-Treasurer's Office, Rock County Courthouse, 204 East Brown St., PO Box 509, Luverne, Minnesota 56156-0509. You may also contact the Auditor-Treasurer at (507) 283-5060 or ashley.kurtz@co.rock.mn.us
